

COAD extend the free warranty service to 3 years

It is possible because there is confidence in the product.

COAD will extend the warranty period to 3 years for the motor driven parts. This system is designed to help customers to use high-speed automatic doors more safely.

The industry evaluates that COAD speed doors can be implemented this system because they have high technology, such as European CE certification, high-end Sumitomo Hyponic motor use patented by the US, and aluminum round frame.

In addition, COAD operates 24-hour after-sales service center etc guarantees thorough installation and maintenance. It is characterized by the ability to install a speed door without any error by operating the entire series of processes related to the installation of automatic doors for industrial use from actual measurement, production, and construction.

On the other hand, based on the technology of speed door, COAD received the most desired attention in overseas markets and established six local subsidiaries such as Japan, Thailand and Indonesia.
